La Martiniere College, Lucknow, was founded in 1845, in accordance with the Will of Major General Claude Martin. Born in Lyon, France, in 1735, the Founder died in Lucknow on 13 September, 1800. The day of his death, by his own instructions is commemorated as ‘Founder’s Day’. Under his Will, certain funds were allotted for the establishment of schools at Lyon, his birth place in France, in Calcutta and at Lucknow. In his Will Claude Martin also directed that “my house at Luckperra or Constantia House with all the ground and premises belonging to the house and all the ground around it, none is to be sold or detached from it.” The Will went on to define his purpose, which was “for to keep the said Constantia House for school or College for teaching young men the English language and Christian religion if they found themselves inclined.”

For more than a generation after the Founder’s death, there was a great deal of litigation over his Will. This went all the way up for consideration to the Privy Council of the United Kingdom, the highest Court for British India. On 11 April, 1839, the erstwhile Supreme Court at Calcutta decreed “that a College at Lucknow be established pursuant to the will of Claude Martin.” A further decree of the Supreme Court dated 22 December, 1841, laid down a scheme for the establishment of La Martiniere College, at Lucknow. As such, La Martiniere College, Lucknow, occupies a unique position amongst the schools in India and the erstwhile British Empire.

The College consists of a magnificent eighteenth century building, to which other imposing structures have been periodically added. Constantia, the imposing centre-point of La Martiniere, was designed as a country house of Major-General Claude Martin. He willed that he be buried in the crypt of the building.

The first Principal of La Martiniere College, Lucknow, Mr John Newmarch, recorded on 12 November, 1845, “The College began work on the 1st October last.” This date, 01 October, 1845, is taken as the actual beginning of the College and is now commemorated as Constantia Day. About seventy boys were admitted in the first session. Today, the strength on the rolls has now crossed 4000, divided in classes ranging from the Nursery to the ISC (Year 12) level. Owing to the munificence of the Founder, Major-General Claude Martin, many boys called ‘Foundations’ are provided tuition, clothing, board and lodging at nominal fees. All scholars share equally in the benefits of the College without preference in respect of religion or economic status.

La Martiniere College was deeply affected by the events of 1857. The College was evacuated to the Residency on 13 June, 1857, on the orders of Sir Henry Lawrence, although the Principal, George Schilling, had fortified the school buildings and stocked provisions with the intention of defending La Martiniere. During the stirring events of 1857 the Principal, Masters and boys of La Martiniere played a role, which is perhaps unique in the history of the world. They defended an extremely exposed part of the southern perimeter of the Residency, withstood infantry and artillery attacks and were subjected to mining operations. In the face of great hardship they ably and successfully defended The Martiniere Post for almost five months. Meanwhile studies continued. In 1933 as recognition of the role played by them, the College was awarded the privilege to display a flag on ceremonial occasions, loosely referred to as ‘Battle Honours’, bearing the legend Defence of Lucknow, 1857. This is a distinction no other school in the world enjoys.

Today, La Martiniere College imparts instruction through the medium of English and admission to the College is eagerly sought. Over the span of one and a half centuries, the College has produced soldiers, sailors and airmen who have done the school and their country proud in the two World Wars and in the wars of Independent India. It has also produced engineers, doctors, educators, administrators and outstanding sportsmen, now scattered over the globe. It counts among its illustrious alumni, men of Warand Peace.

On 01 October, 1995, the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the opening of the College, the President of India, acknowledged the contribution of the College by releasing a postage stamp of the denomination of Rs 2.00, as a mark of honour. This, again, is a mark of distinction that only a few other institutions in India enjoy.
Claude Martin designed his own coat of arms. The escutcheon or central shield bears charges or emblems, which epitomise his career. The escutcheon is supported by seven standards bearing the motif of the fish.

The device of the sailing ship represents the nautical influences in Claude Martin’s career—his voyage from France to India, the events related to his travel from Pondicherry to Calcutta over the Bay of Bengal.

In the centre of the shield is the lion rampant with the pennant. This is similar to one of the lions on the coat of arms of the East India Company. A lion rampant in heraldry symbolizes bravery, valour and strength. The rock symbolizes the establishment and foundation of his fortunes. The East India Company lion stands upon this rock. It was as an officer of the Company that Claude Martin made his fortune. The castellated building is a device that represents Constantia, his final architectural achievement that had an overpowering role in his latter years. The sun setting behind Constantia reflects the sunset of his days.

The supporters on each side of the escutcheon are made up of three standards on the left and four standards on the right. Each bears the motif of the fish. The seven standards were part of the armorial bearing of the Nawabs of Oudh and could only have been used with the permission of Nawab Asaf-ud-Daula.

The dominant tinctures are gold and azure (blue). The College colours are Navy Blue and Old Gold. The standards themselves have been variously interpreted as rivers of Oudh or possibly as military engagements in which Claude Martin was involved. These include the Siege of Pondicherry, the Battles of Udwana and Buxar and the Siege of Seringapatam. Claude Martin’s personal motto, the Latin, Labor et Constantia on a scroll below the escutcheon and supporters completes the picture. This is also the motto of all La Martiniere schools, which exhorts its pupils to Labour and Constancy.
La Martiniere College, Lucknow was established in 1845. In addition to the many facilities that are associated with an old school, the College offers a variety of choices in subjects for study. La Martiniere College is affiliated to the Council for the Indian School Certificate Examinations (CISCE) and students are prepared to write the Indian School Certificate (Year 10) Examination (ICSE) and the Indian School Certificate (Year 12) Examination (ISC).

There are two academic campuses of La Martiniere College. The Junior School Campus, is made up of three academic blocks which accommodates the pre-school and junior sections. Most classrooms now have ‘Smart Class’ facilities. Constantia Campus houses the middle and senior sections as well as the living facilities of the resident-scholars and resident Staff.

Constantia is a heritage building, the construction of which began in 1796. It is not protected by the Archaeological Survey of India, but is listed under INTACH and falls within the Lucknow heritage zone. The Founder is buried in the crypt in the basement. Immediately above the crypt is the Memorial Hall. Tablets that bear the names of those former pupils of the College who were killed in battle, including in the two World Wars, surround the bust of the Founder. Alumni from the College, decorated by the President of India since Independence with the top three national gallantry awards are commemorated here. The contribution of the boys of La Martiniere during the events of 1857 were recognized by the College being presented a Blue and Gold flag to be paraded on ceremonial occasions, loosely referred to as ‘Battle Honours’, bearing the legend ‘Defence of Lucknow’. The colours are now the tinctures of the College Flag.

To the North of the Memorial Hall is the famous Blue Room, a formal reception room of La Martiniere College. A portrait of the Founder dominates this room. A masterpiece by the artist Johann Zoffany with the Founder’s lady companion Bouline-Lise and her adopted son, James Martin or Zulphikar as studies, is a prized possession. Contiguous with the Blue Room is the Board Room, reserved for meetings of the Local Committee of Governors of the College.

To the South of the Memorial Hall is the Trophy Room, reserved for the display of all awards and presentations to the College. Valuable portraits of Governors-General of the East India Company, Viceroy’s of British India and Presidents of the Indian Republic adorn the walls of the three galleries in the mezzanine of the Memorial Hall.
East of the Memorial Hall is the College Chapel. The furniture and ornaments are over a century old. Two stained-glass windows presented by former pupils of the College depict the Child Jesus in the Carpenter’s Shop and the Child Jesus with the Doctors of the Law, bringing to mind the values of Work and Wisdom, respectively. The grand pipe organ accompanies the choir, which processes into Chapel every morning in an unchanged tradition.

The Library faces the East Terrace. Each of the plaques on the highly ornamented ceiling is made in accordance with original Wedgwood designs.

The personal apartments of the Principal and Vice-Principal are situated to the extreme North and South of Constantia, respectively.

A grand staircase leads to the East Terrace, an artificial terrace overlooking a lake from the centre of which rises a solid fluted column, approximately 125 feet high. This is called the Lat and its building is the source of much speculation that is now a part of legend. In the Centre of the East Terrace is the imposing cannon, cast by Claude Martin and used in the Battle of Seringapatam, 1792. It is named The Lord Cornwallis in honour of Charles Cornwallis, the 1st Marquess Cornwallis. Two cannons flank The Lord Cornwallis. A special bell, cast by the Founder is placed on a pedestal. East Terrace is a perfect setting for the many formal occasions to be held, including parades and Prize Day. The stones of each step are engraved with the names of pupils through the centuries who have literally left their mark.

The North and South Wings now contiguous with Constantia were constructed according to Claude Martin’s instructions in the 1840s. The North Wing accommodates, on the first floor, the Principal’s Office, the College Offices, the Gymnasium and the Computer Laboratories. The Junior dormitory is an extension to the North Wing. The Junior Houserooms, stores and the Office of the Alumni Association occupy the ground floor.

The South Wing accommodates classrooms and the Middle School Library on the first floor. A mezzanine has been recently constructed to provide further classrooms. The dormitory for junior resident-scholars is in the extension to the South Wing. The Senior Houserooms, and the Office of the Master on Duty occupy the ground floor of the South Wing.

A modern Information Centre in the south-west parapet, blends with the centuries’ old structure. Modern communication devices are used here as an extension to the College Library.

Much conservation and restoration work has been recently done in Constantia, the central mansion. Funded largely by munificent donations from alumni all over the world, this is an on going process. The Muses’ Bower is a highly ornamented room, which serves as a night study room for the senior-most pupils.

Two major Halls flank the west of Constantia. Spence Hall, built by the bequest of Mr. A. V. Spence in 1933, accommodates the College auditorium and classrooms. It is among the most frequented and well-loved buildings. On the other side is Sykes Hall, dedicated to the memory of Mr. Thomas Gaskell Sykes, who served the College for thirty years as the longest serving Principal. The ground floor is used as the dining hall for the resident-scholars while the science laboratories are on the upper two floors. Beyond Sykes Hall lie the service areas. The college kitchens are modern and hygienic and cater for all daily meals for over 400 persons.

The beautiful College gardens provide a perfect frontage to the West entrance of the College. An upper lawn dominates the area, while the tennis lawn and rosarium are on each side of the formal gardens, bright with seasonal flowers. The College sundial is placed in the sunken lawn of these gardens.

Other buildings of interest include the Swimming Baths constructed in 1880. These have been modernized with viewing stands and filtration facilities. A portion of the Aquatics Complex serves as an Activity Hall and Air-rifle shooting range.
The College Hospital was constructed in circa 1870. This has modern medical facilities. A resident nurse takes care of the boys and a doctor is on call. In 2015, a new dormitory to accommodate the junior-most resident scholars has been completed with all living facilities for 150 residents. This incorporates the stables and the Mews, built in 1889.

The tomb of Boulone-Lise, also known as Gori Bibi, the Founder's favourite lady companion is a beautiful structure that is illuminated every evening. Major Hodson, who raised the eponymous cavalry regiment, also lies buried on La Martiniere estate.

Extensive playfields surround the academic complexes. ‘Fairydale’ is designed for cricket, while ‘Polo Ground’ is now used for football, athletics and the annual Sports Day. There are separate fields for Seniors, Juniors and Colts to practice all games separately on either side of the Lucknow Golf Club, leased by the College. Courts for basketball and badminton and facilities for table tennis and other indoor games are situated around the campus. The Tennis Facility boasts of 12 tennis courts. This is operated under licence. A modern skating rink complete with lighting and music is a recent addition. Stables to accommodate up to fourteen horses encourage horse-riding. Training is provided in the College Paddock by accomplished trainers. The Junior Cricket pitches and practice areas occupy the fields near the Dairy, while Bakers' Field is used for fields for Hockey and Rugby. The shell of a decommissioned Gnat fighter aircraft, presented to the College by the Chief of Air Staff has been erected on a mock runway. This is the central trophy of the upcoming Memorial Park built to honour veteran alumni of the College.

The Junior School Campus is separated from Constantia campus by the Golf Course. This relatively modern complex is made attractive with gardens and swings in a setting that is open and yet protected for the junior pupils. The facilities of the senior school campus are replicated here to suit the age of the children.

The air-conditioned College canteen is a popular haunt during all free time in the day. Children find their own favourite spots to relax which include the ‘Bull’s Ring’ and ‘Three Corners’ and the four parapets.

The Alumni support La Martiniere College, Lucknow in many of its activities. This reinforces the bonding that former pupils of the College maintain with the generation of boys that is currently studying here. An independent Alumni Office functions from the College campus.
Given below is the fee structure for the session 2023-2024. Parents are informed that the Composite Annual Fees, (currently Rs 90600.00) is most likely to be increased following approval of enhancement of fees by the Trustees of La Martiniere College, Lucknow. CORNWALLIS HOUSE

Inspiration: Charles Cornwallis, 2nd Earl Cornwallis to whom Claude Martin served as aide-de-camp during the Third Anglo-Mysore War.

Colour: Green

Motto: Never Give In

Description: The shield depicts an image of The Lord Cornwallis cannon, cast by Claude Martin in the Lucknow Arsenal in 1796 and the central feature on the East Terrace of Constantia. The cannon is emblazoned on an escutcheon with diagonals of Blue and Gold stripes, now the College colours. At the top of the shield is a helmet with a visor crowned with the Earl's coronet. Two fish, the emblem of Oudh used in the Coat of Arms of Claude Martin support the escutcheon on either side. At the bottom of the shield is the House motto 'Never Give In'.

HODSON HOUSE

Inspiration: Brevet Major William Stephen Raikes Hodson (1821 – 1858) was a British leader of irregular light cavalry who raised the Cavalry regiment known as Hodson's Horse. It exists today as the 4th Horse Regiment, an armoured regiment in the Indian Army. Hodson is buried on La Martiniere Estate.

Hodson has the distinction of equipping his regiment in khaki colour uniform, which is considered the precursor of modern camouflage uniform. The tradition of the khaki uniform continues as the summer uniform in La Martiniere College, Lucknow.

Colour: Red

Motto: Do or Die

Description: The shield depicts images of horse heads and crossed swords reflecting the contribution of Brevet Major William Stephen Raikes Hodson who raised the eponymous cavalry regiment. At the bottom of the shield is the House motto 'Do or Die'.

LYON HOUSE

Inspiration: The city of Lyon, France, the birthplace of the Founder, Major General Claude Martin on 4 January 1735. Claude Martin left instructions in his Will for schools to be established in Lucknow, Kolkata and Lyon. Today, there are three La Martiniere establishments in the city of Lyon: La Martinière Monplaisir, La Martinière Duchère, and La Martinière Terreaux.

Colour: Yellow

Motto: To the End

Description: The shield depicts a lion rampant, which is the central image of the Coat of Arms and flag of the city of Lyon. The lion rampant symbolizes the virtues of bravery, valour, strength and royalty. At the bottom of the shield is the House motto 'To The End'.

MARTIN HOUSE

Inspiration: The Founder – Major General Claude Martin (4 January 1735 – 13 September 1800). Major General Claude Martin was an officer in the French, and later the British East India Company's Bengal Army. Born into a humble background, he rose to the position of Major General. He was a self-made man who left a lasting legacy in the educational institutions he founded posthumously in Lucknow, Kolkata and Lyon.

Colour: Blue

Motto: Nil Desperandum

Description: The shield depicts a sail ship, which is also a device in the Coat of Arms of the Founder. The ship recalls the nautical exploits of Claude Martin, which includes his voyage to India and his journey in the Fateh Bahadur in the Bay of Bengal. The Great Bell, also called the Martin Bell, now placed on the East Terrace of Constantia is at the top of the shield. Laurel leaves in a horseshoe shape frame the image of the ship, as a symbol of martial victory. At the bottom of the shield is the House motto 'Nil Desperandum', Latin for Never Despair.
